Accent on Youth During Princesses' Island Tours

"Prinsesnan ta bini!" "De Prinsessen komen!" "Here come the princesses!"

These greetings, for the most part youthful, heralded the arrival of H.R.H. Princess Irene and H.R.H. Princess Margriet at Beatrix Airport July 26. Whatever the language used to welcome the royal visitors, the meaning was the same — warm greetings from an excited populace.

It was significant that children far outnumbered adults at the airport because throughout the princesses' stay the accent was on youth.

Before they were officially received in the airport terminal by aldermen and other government officials, the princesses passed through a row of smartly-clad girl scouts and brownies. Another formation of Antillean Girl Guild members saluted the princesses as they left the terminal.

Accompanied by I. S. de Cuba, acting lieutenant governor of Aruba, and C. Winkel, acting governor of the Netherlands Antilles, the princesses motored in open cars to the Aruba Caribbean Hotel. The route took them through the Nassaustraat business district in Oranjestad.

The entire fourth floor of the hotel was reserved for the princesses and members of their official party. The party included their lady-in-waiting, private secretary, adjutant and security personnel.

Except for their stately bearing, the princesses could have passed for two well-groomed young ladies arriving for an island vacation. Princess Irene wore a brown middie

U.S. Libraries Send 'Thank You' Notes For Aruba Histories Donated by Lago

Several hundred public libraries and university libraries in the U.S. have acknowledged receipt of copies of the English edition of "Aruba—Past and Present," a complete history written by Dr. J. Hartog. Lago donated the volumes to 750 major public libraries and university libraries located in all the fifty states of the Union.

The publisher began mailing the books to the United States, including Hawaii and Alaska, in May. The 750 copies were contracted for by Lago to help subsidize the English edition. Dr. Hartog's book was originally published in Dutch several years ago. It is a complete history from ethnic origins of Aruba's people to present-day political and industrial developments.

Not only have the institutions acknowledged receipt of copies of the history but many have added personal notes of appreciation in cards and letters addressed to the Public Relations Department.

A note from the Library of Hawaii said: "Since we have very few books about your part of the world, I am sure we will find this volume most interesting." And from the Des Plaines Public Library came this interesting informative note: "Our city of 42,000 population is located just outside the new O'Hare Airport of Chicago. Since our town has grown some 200 per cent since 1950, we have many executives who travel a lot. A book such as yours will interest many of our patrons."

A note from a southeastern library, the Public Library of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, included this information: "This volume fills a place in the histories of countries of the world that we have needed. It appears to be a complete and comprehensive history of Aruba."

The United States Naval Academy advised that the book would be added to its collection for use by officers and midshipmen; the University of Oregon wrote that ".....a work of this size and depth dealing with the

Lago's Thirty-Year-Old Marine Post Office Will Close Doors Permanently Aug. 14

The Marine Post Office, a Lago service for sailors that dates back thirty years, will close its doors and stamp windows Aug. 14. After that date, Marine Post Office functions will be taken over by the Seroe Colorado Post Office under the supervision of the Executive Service Division. Sailors have more comfortable tankers as berths nowadays but because modern tankers are bigger, fewer call at San Nicolas Harbor. This has meant less business for the Marine Post Office and has led to the decision to transfer operations to Seroe Colorado's mail service.

National Safety Council Presents Lago with Award Of Honor Number Sixteen

Lago's sixteenth Award of Honor from the National Safety Council has joined the display of previous top NSC awards in the General Office Building.

The company received this plaque for having operated 3,460,833 man-hours without a disabling injury from Dec. 6, 1961, through May 6, 1962. The Award of Honor is the twelfth earned by Lago for having operated a period of three million or more manhours without a lost-time injury. Four Awards of Honor were the result of outstanding safety performance in the petroleum industry for a given year.

Award of Honor number fifteen fitted the latter category. When Lago took the National Safety Council first place award in 1961 for its industry group it also was awarded an Award of Honor for outstanding safety performance. That's the year that Lago had a record 0.34 frequency rate.

Award of Honor number fourteen was received for a disabling-injury-free work period from Oct. 19, 1960, through June 6, 1961. Nearly 6,000,000 manhours were worked during that period without a single lost-time accident occurring.

sand parcels. It was a common sight to see sailors rush for the post office after clearing customs. Nearly all would be carrying beautifully hand-sewn sail cloth packages. For the most part, the packages contained Brazilian coffee, jams, clothing and tinned soups intended for relatives in European countries.

Sailors will be inconvenienced only slightly with the change in mail handling. Ships' masters can forward outgoing mail through the GOB receptionist or seamen can purchase stamps from either the Government Post Office in San Nicolas or the International Seamen's Club. The latter is open twenty-four hours a day and can handle the mailing of packages as well. These packages, however, will have to be inspected by customs officials before they are cleared to be taken out of the refinery.

Incoming mail will be routed through the Seroe Colorado Post Office to the Marine Department's ship dispatcher who will deliver the mail on board the ship.

When the harbor was first opened to lake tankers thirty-five years ago, mail was delivered to and picked up at the Government Post Office in Oranjestad.

Comdr. A. J. de Graaff Says Preparations Well Planned For Royal Visit to Lago

Comdr. A. J. de Graaff, adjutant to the princesses, recently informed Lago management through an intermediary that Lago's preparations for the visit July 27 of H.R.H. Princess Irene and H.R.H. Princess Margriet were well planned and organized.

Similar views were expressed by Police Commissioner C. de Jager who praised the organizational details of the princesses' visit to Lago.

The Lago Police Department was instrumental in maintaining flawless control over the royal party's entourage of a dozen vehicles as it moved in and through the refinery into Seroe Colorado and out the Sea Grape gate. The General Services Department was responsible for decorating the Youth Canteen and preparing refreshments for the guests.

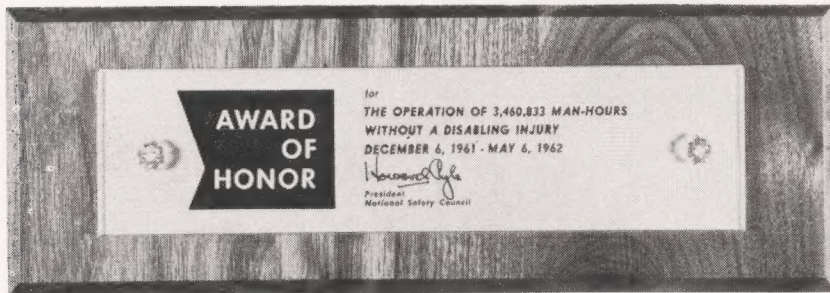

Appreciation was expressed by Lago management to the groups that participated in the water show — the Aruba Yacht Club, Summer Recreation Program sailors and water skiers and to the Aruba Flying Club.

Four planes gave the princesses an aerial salute from the Aruba Flying Club of which H.R.H. Prince Bernhard is an honorary member. Gratitude was also given to groups involved in the Youth Canteen visitation by the princesses — the Woman's Club of Aruba, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts and the Canteen Committee.

The excellent photo coverage in this issue would not have been possible without Lago's on-the-scene photographers and behind-the-scenes photo lab technicians. Special mention is due N. Singh for his interesting color photograph of the princesses being greeted in the Employee Medical Center, page 1, and S. Rajroop's dramatic human interest shot of a nun and two youngsters waiting to greet the princesses, also page 1.

blouse and matching skirt in white and brown stripes. Princess Margriet wore a blue flowered print street dress, its V-neck complemented by a double-strand pearl necklace.

Their first evening in Aruba was a formal one. A public reception at the Caribe Club enabled them to meet several citizens who had distinguished themselves through many civic contributions. Among those present was J. H. Beaujon of Lago's Industrial Relations Department.

The rest of the activities during their four-day stay strongly emphasized youth activities in Aruba.

They left the hotel Friday morning to visit Imeldahof. Greeting them were a maypole dance and youthful voices in songs of welcome. From Imeldahof, the official party motored to the government building in Oranjestad where groups of children from all Oranjestad schools burst forth in heart-warming Papiamentu songs.

Stop at Savaneta

Next stop was the Roman Catholic Church in Savaneta. Again the accent was on youth. The princesses were met by singing children and were presented with attractive gifts by boys and girls.

The International Seamen's Club in San Nicolas was visited by the royal party following the Savaneta stop. Both sides of the street were lined with flag-waving school children. The princesses were greeted at the seamen's organization by Board Chairman W. T. Murphy, Vice Chairman J. R. Proterra, Treasurer D. D. Daleski, Father Erkamp, Club Manager J. van Heeswijk and members of the board. After a tour of the club's facilities, the princesses and members of their party discussed over-all club activities with members of the reception committee during refreshments. On behalf of the In-

Former Lago Employee's Determination Earns Him Civil Engineering Degree

A former Lago employee who used Thrift Plan savings to help finance part of his education was recently graduated from one of the largest engineering schools in the U.S., the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

Seven years ago, M. V. LaRode left his Marine Department job to pursue a college education. He was graduated from the Brooklyn school in June with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering. Shortly afterwards, Mr. LaRode received an appointment as an engineer with New York City's Housing Authority.

Mr. LaRode said he left Aruba with the burning desire to become an engineer. This desire, he said, was sparked by his introduction to engineering under the tutelage of Forest Myers of TSD-Engineering.

His first year of schooling was obtained at the Sir George Williams College in Montreal. He enrolled in Columbia University the following year but because of high tuition costs he was forced to find a part-time job. Mr. LaRode said he continued in this manner for three years and then had to abandon his studies for a year for financial reasons.

After working a year, Mr. LaRode was not content to give up his engineering career plans. It was at this time that he used his Thrift Plan savings to finance his education.

International Seamen's Club, each of the princesses was presented a sterling silver letter opener with bone handle on which was inscribed their names.

John Wesley College was next visited by the princesses. There they were entertained with authentic Antillean folk dances. Costumed dancers presented the princesses with shell figurines and a souvenir album cut in the shape of Aruba.

From John Wesley College the official party motored through Lago's Main Gate to the Employee Medical Center where they were greeted by President W. A. Murray and members of the Executive Committee. The princesses toured the Employee Medical Center before motoring through the refinery to the Youth Canteen in Seroe Colorado.

At the Youth Canteen, the princesses sat with the teen-age committee members of the youth organization. The youths described their duties and answered several queries from the princesses about canteen activities.

After the canteen visit, the princesses were escorted to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Murray where they had refreshments and a short rest from the morning's full schedule.

tivities once again resumed for the visiting princesses. The Island Government of Aruba feted the royal party with a barbecue at the hotel.

A tour of the island's major scenic spots Saturday morning took the princesses to the natural bridge and the rock formations at Ayó. On their way to the natural bridge the princesses stopped at the Paradera Roman Catholic Church where a maypole dance was in full sway.

At both the natural bridge and Ayó, Princess Irene and Princess Margriet scrambled over the rocks to enjoy various views of the scenic spots. Very much in evidence was Princess Irene's 16 mm movie camera as she recorded the natural wonders for her film library.

Saturday's official program was concluded with a dinner held for the princesses at De Olde Molen restaurant. The island government again sponsored the evening's entertainment which suitably was held in the authentic Dutch windmill.

The following morning, Sunday, the princesses departed from the airport that bears the name of Crown Princess Beatrix. At the airport were hundreds of well wishers, their goodbyes muffled by the roar of the KLM transport as it took off with the princesses for Bonaire.

A short ride through the refinery led to the Youth Canteen in Seroe Colorado where the princesses were greeted by an enthusiastic crowd and various scouting groups. At the center, they were met by Mrs. F. G. Frey, Woman's Club president; Mrs. I. J. Kirkman, chairman of the Youth Canteen committee, Mrs. H. C. Miller, leader of the Seroe Colorado Girl Scouts, and Youth Canteen officers.

Mrs. Kirkman introduced the teenage officers to the princesses. Introduced were Doug Monroe, Spencer McGrew, Bonnie Fox, Gail Janson, Mary Anne Byington, Joyce Rogers, Carol Ann Leonard, Pat Hendrickson and Debbie Lewis.

Following the introductions, the princesses were given an outline of Youth Canteen functions by the officers and committee chairmen. During the course of these reports, the princesses asked several questions pertaining to specific functions of officers and committee heads. Princess Irene wanted to know more about the organization of canteen dances and operating hours for the Canteen. Impressed by the cordon of scouts she met at the entrance of the Youth Canteen building, the princess asked if these organizations were affiliated with the schools. Joyce Rogers, a Mariner, explained that the various scout groups are independent organizations.

At the conclusion of the discussion, Doug Monroe, committee president, presented the princesses with a special tape recording of music typical of Aruba and a photo album of summer activities of Seroe Colorado youth.

Following the visit to the Youth Canteen, the royal party was escorted to the home of President and Mrs. W. A. Murray where refreshments were served. IT WAS nearly two years ago that the Inagua Foam stopped at San Nicolas Harbor for bunkers before undertaking a 2900-mile voyage up the Amazon River to Iquitos, Peru. In Aruba recently was the skipper who said the trip was interesting but uneventful.

TABATA CASI dos anja pasá cu Inagua Foam a pasa haaf di San Nicolas pa bunker promer cu el a emprende un viaje di 2900 milla a lo largo di Rio Amazona pa Iquitos, Peru. Na Aruba recientemente e capitan a bisa cu e viaje tabata interesante, pero sin ningun ventura.

Skipper of Converted Landing Craft Returns from Amazon

Almost two years ago, a surplus U.S. Navy LST — the initials stand for landing ship tank — stopped at Lago's Gasoline Dock for bunkers and cargo oil. The skipper, Capt. Neils Lewring, advised the Aruba Esso News that he had quite an unusual journey ahead of him. He was taking the vessel, the Inagua Foam, 2900 miles up the Amazon. In her hold and on her deck were the dismantled beams and allied equipment that make up an oil-drilling rig.

The rig had to be delivered to Iquitos, Peru, where it was to be transferred to a smaller landing craft for delivery to the drilling site on the Aguata River.

Events of that trip were left to speculation until recently when the skipper of the Inagua Foam came to Aruba aboard another landing ship, the Inagua Shipper.

Captain Lewring had just come back from his second journey up the Amazon. This time his cargo was road-building equipment. When asked the reason for hauling road graders and bulldozers into the heart of the Peruvian jungle, Captain Lewring answered several questions concerning his original trip made in October, 1960.

He said that the towering Andes make it impossible to move heavy equipment such as oil-drilling rigs from Peru's coast to the inland drilling sites. That's why the Inagua Foam and Inagua Wave made the journey twenty-two months ago; that's why the Inagua Shipper carried the road-building equipment up the Amazon. A new road is being constructed in the Andes which will eliminate future needs for long voyages up the Amazon. The taming of the Andes will be significant in the development of the Peruvian interior.

Captain Lewring, born in Denmark and now a U.S. citizen, is not a newcomer to Aruba. He made many voyages here in the old Inagua Shipper which was a small tanker with a capacity of 18,000 gallons.

"When I first went to sea in 1929 it was in sailing ships," he remarked. "In Denmark in those days there were a lot of iron-clad sailing ships in service." During World War II he sailed for the Gulf Oil Company. He's been with the West India Shipping Company almost eight years.

He was the only American in the crew when he made his first voyage up the Amazon. The rest were from Caribbean islands and had dealt with the hot sun all their lives. None, though, reckoned with the 110 degree temperatures they faced daily on the Amazon. Captain Lewring said the high temperatures, high humidity and clouds of buzzing, biting insects took much of the glamour out of the venture.

Crew Feared Indians

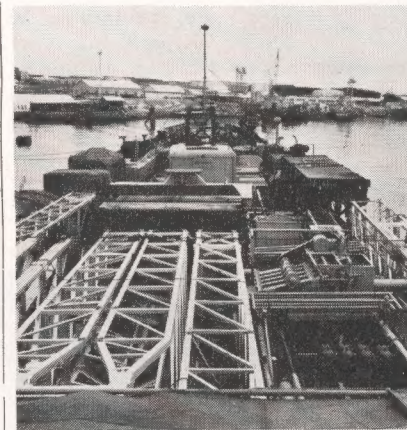

Most of the crew, including the captain, were apprehensive about wild animals and even wilder Indians when they steamed out of Belem, Brazil, Oct. 1, 1960, faced with a 2900-mile voyage up the biggest river in the world. Twenty-eight days later they were at Iquitos where the smaller draft Inagua Wave — the same vessel that recently delivered the massive converter to Barcadera — took the rig the rest of the way. "One of the Indian tribes we made contact with was the Cipibo tribe," Captain Lewring recalled. "They weren't exactly wild but if you violated one of their many taboos they would kill you just like that."

An amateur photographer, Captain Lewring brought back many interesting snap shots of various Indian tribes they contacted along the river — the Campas, Chamas and Kurabas. Most of them hunted food with deadly looking bow and arrows. The arrows are made of iron-like wood and are five feet in length.

The captain said that the trip actually was uneventful. Their fears of animals and Indians were groundless for the most part. They did take swims in the Amazon which is infested with wicked-looking crocodiles. "We seldom saw animals from the ship," Captain Lewring said. "You could hear the jaguars — el tigre — hunting and killing at night. We did see an occasional anaconda. Never once were we stalked or threatened by Indians."

He said it only took fourteen days to return to Belem on the Amazon delta. The recent trip up the Amazon on the Inagua Shipper was also uneventful, he remarked.

THE LANDING craft hauled a complete oil-drilling rig up the Amazon to a Peruvian drilling site.

E BAPOR aki a hiba un rig completo di dril pa azeta a lo largo di Amazona pa su sitio na Peru.

Prinsesnan Ta Bishita Lago

(Continúa di pagina 5)

B. C. Clarkson y Public Relations Manager E. Byington, Sr. Murray y Sr. Donovan a escorta e prinsesnan den Medical Center unda nan a worde introduci na Dr. G. G. Hendrickson, hefe di Medical Department; Dr. R. F. Brace, hefe di Employee Medical Center, y Dr. J. J. Waasdorp. E prinsesnan brevemente a inspecta e centro cu Dr. Waasdorp.

Un careda cortico door di refinaria luego a hiba e grupo pa Youth Canteen den Seroe Colorado unda e prinsesnan a worde saludá pa un multitud entusiaste y varios grupo di padvinder. Na e centro, nan a worde saludá pa Sra. F. G. Frey, presidente di Woman's Club; Sra. I. J. Kirkman, presidente di e comité di Youth Canteen, Sra. H. C. Miller, lider di padvindsternan di Seroe Colorado, y miembronan di directiva di Canteen.

Sra. Kirkman a introduci e hobenar miembro di directiva na e prinsesnan. A worde introduci Doug Monroe, Spencer McGrew, Bonnie Fox, Gail Janson, Mary Anne Byington, Joyce Rogers, Carol Ann Leonard, Pat Hendrickson y Debbie Lewis.

Despues di e introduccionnan, e prinsesnan a worde duná un splica-cion di funcionnan di Youth Canteen door di oficialnan y presidentenan di comité. Durante e splicacion aki, e prinsesnan a haci varios pregunta. Prinses Irene tabata kier sabi mas tocante organizacion di bailenan y oranan cu e Canteen ta habri. Impresioná door di e cordon di padvindners cu nan a encontra pafor di e edificio, e prinsesnan a puntra si e organizacionnan aki tabata afiliá cu schoolnan. Joyce Rogers, un Mariner, a splica cu e varios gruponan di padvindners ta organizacionnan independiente.

Ora e discusion a conclui, Doug Monroe, presidente di e comité, a presenta na e prinsesnan un tape-recording special di musica tipico Arubano y un foto album cubriendo actividadnan di hobennan di Seroe Colorado durante verano.

Despues di e bishita na Youth Canteen, e grupo real a worde escortá pa cas di Presidente y Sra. W. A. Murray unda refresco a worde sirbi. Na e momento aki, skiers acuatico y botonan di bela a haci un impresivo show den lagoen. E skiers a haci varios stunt special. Den aire cuatro avion di Aruba Flying Club tabata haci pasada den formacion pretá over di lagoen.

Captan di LST Ta Bolbe Di Amazona; El A Bini Aruba Abordo di Otro LST

Casi dos anja pasá, un surplus U.S. Navy LST — e inicialnan ta pará pa landing ship tank — a para na Gasoline Dock di Lago pa bunker y pa tuma carga di azeta. E capitan, Capt. Neils Lewring, a avisa Aruba Esso News cu el tabatin un viaje masha inusitado su dilanti. El tabata hiba e bapor, Inagua Foam, 2900 milla a lo largo di Amazona. Den su bodega y ariba dek tabatin e balkinan desarmá y otro aparatonan cu ta forma un rig di dril pa azeta.

E rig mester a worde entregá na Iquitos, Peru, unda e lo a worde pasá pa un landing craft mas chikito pa asina e worde entregá na su sitio canto di Rio Aquitia.

Eventonan di e viaje aki a keda speculation te ora cu recientemente capitan di Inagua Foam a bini Aruba a bordo di un otro landing ship, Inagua Shipper.

Capt. Lewring a caba di bolbe pa su segundo viaje a lo largo di Amazona. E biaha aki su carga tabata consisti di maquina pa construccion di camina. Ora a puntre-le pa e motibo cu graders y bulldozers ta worde hibá te den corazon di selva Peruano, Capt. Lewring a contesta varios pregunta tocante su promer viaje na October 1960.

El a bisa cu e Cordillera de los Andes ta haci imposible pa move maquina pisá manera rig pa dril azeta for di costa di Peru pa e sitio interior. Ta pesey Inagua Foam y Inagua Wave a haci e viaje bintidos luna pasá; ta pesey Inagua Shipper a hiba maquina di construccion di camina pa Amazona. Un camina nobo ta worde trahá den Andes cual lo elimina e necesidad den futuro pa viaje largo canto di Amazona. Dominamento di Andes lo ta significante den desaroyo di interior di Peru.

Capt. Lewring, naci na Dinamarca y awor ciudadano di Estados Unidos, no ta un hende stranjo aki na Aruba. El a haci varios bishita aki cu Inagua Shipper bieuw, cual tabata un tanquero chikito cu un capacidad di carga di 18,000 galon.

Unico Americano

El tabata e unico Americano den e tripulacion tempo cu el a haci su promer viaje a lo largo di Amazona. E resto tabata di islanan di Caribe, y tabata acostumbra cu un solo cayente henter nan vida. Ningun, sin embargo, a conta cu temperaturanan di 110 grado cu nan tabata encontra diariamente na Amazona. Captain Lewring a bisa cu e temperaturanan halto, alto humedad y nubianan di insectonan brabo a roba hopi di buntiza di e viaje.

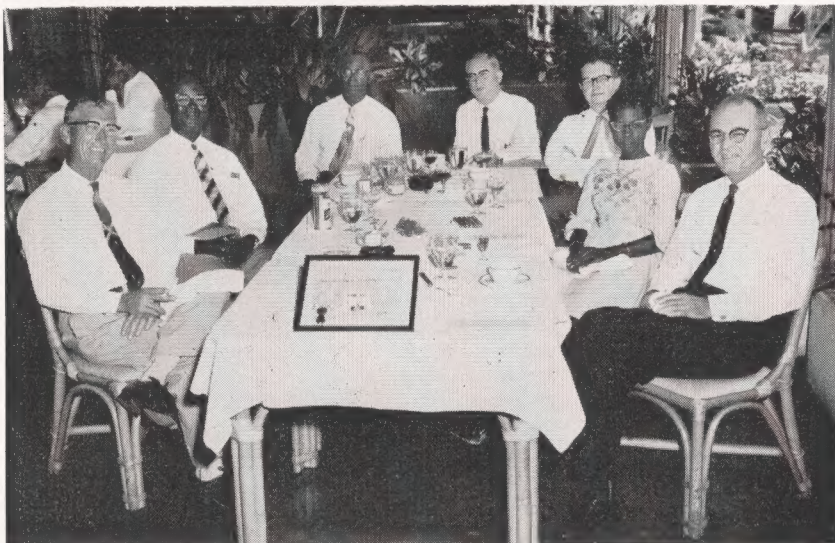

Mayor parti di e tripulacion, incluyendo e capitan, tabatin un poco miedo di animalnan feroso y hasta Indianan un poco salvaje ora nan a sali for di Belem, Brazil, Oct. 1, 1960, enfrentando un viaje di 2900 milla a lo largo di e rio mas grandi na mundo. "Binti-ocho dia mas despues nan tabata na Iquitos unda Inagua Wave di menos profundidad — e mes bapor cu recientemente a entrega e masivo converter na Barcadera — a hiba e rig e resto di camina.

"Un di e tribonan Indio cu cual nos a haci contacto tabata e tribo Cipibo," Capt. Lewring a bisa. "Nan no tabata exactamente salvaje, pero si bo viola un di nan hopi taboe, nan ta mata bo mes ora."

Un fotógrafo amateur, Capt. Lewring a trece cu ne hopi retratonan interesante di varios tribonan Indio cu cual nan tabatin contacto a lo largo di e rio — Campas, Chamas y Kurabas. Hopi di nan ta jaag cu flecha y arco. E flechanan ta trahá di palo duro manera hero y ta como cinco pia largo.

E capitan a bisa cu en efecto e viaje tabatin sin ningun evento. Nan temor pa animal feroso y Indianan tabata sin fondo pa mayor parte. Nan a landa toch den Amazona cu ta infestá cu krokodil amenazante.

El a bisa cu a tuma solamente diez-cuatro dia pa bolbe Belem na delta di Amazona.
